There are no qualifications in the annual reports of the Issuer for the years ending 31 December 2024 and 31 December 2023.

What are the key risks that are specific to the issuer?

Risks related to macroeconomic conditions. The results of the business operations of the Issuer are dependent on Latvia's macroeconomic situation, including GDP, industrial production, inflation, energy prices, unemployment, consumer affluence, and fiscal policies. Severe deterioration of either global, regional or national economic situation and/or financial position of the Latvian government may impede the capacity of the Issuer to honour its financial obligations. Any negative effect on the economy may decrease incomes of the Issuer's customers and the demand for the Issuer's services. Such effects may also result in insolvency of the Issuer's business partners, which could affect the operations of the Issuer, as well as its financial standing.

Risks related to strategic planning and implementation. The Issuer's financial stability depends on strategic planning that accurately defines goals, directions of action, and performance indicators aligned with internal objectives and external factors. To address strategic planning-related risks, the Issuer is actively monitoring the established and planned treatment requirements and continues to work on projects such as the improvements in Vārnukrogs sludge storage facility, the sewage sludge anaerobic digester expansion project and expansion of wastewater treatment plant "Daugavgrīva". If, however, despite the Issuer's efforts any of these risks materialise, this may have an adverse impact on the Issuer's reputation, business and financial position.

Energy efficiency risks. Risks related to energy efficiency arise from challenges in optimizing resource use and adapting to increasing energy costs, regulatory demands, and technological advancements. The Issuer's operations rely significantly on energy and resource inputs, making energy efficiency essential for ensuring financial stability, environmental responsibility, and long-term sustainability. Inefficient energy consumption in critical areas such as water extraction, wastewater treatment, and distribution networks can lead to higher operational expenses.

Risks related to extreme conditions. The Issuer's operations face growing vulnerabilities from extreme weather events and long-term climate changes. Acute risks include extreme weather events such as intense storms, heavy rainfall, floods, and unseasonal temperature extremes. These events can overwhelm infrastructure and disrupt operations, as well as disrupt and delay the restoration of essential services. To mitigate these risks, the Issuer monitors wastewater flows and is working on a plan to build retention tanks in the sewer networks and mechanical pretreatment of wastewater in the emergency releases. Various measures are also being taken at the Issuer's facilities to ensure business continuity, such as installation of a two-line power supply, purchase of power generators, and others.

Environmental pollution risks. The Issuer's operations are influenced by various environmental risks related to wastewater management, infrastructure capacity, and compliance with environmental regulations. These risks include potential breaches in regulatory limits, such as proportion of treated wastewater, pollution levels of treated wastewater and odour emissions. Although the Issuer conducts regular and comprehensive monitoring of the sewer network, pollution levels, and odour concentrations, materialisation of any of these risks may have an adverse effect on the Issuer's business operations and financial standing.

Risks related to technological processes. Potential failures in water extraction processes, equipment malfunctions, contamination of water sources and power supply interruptions, particularly in systems with aging infrastructure, may lead to additional costs, cause environmental pollution and disrupt water availability, affecting both residential and industrial customers and potentially undermining the Issuer's operational efficiency, financial standing and reputation. To mitigate potential risks, continuous monitoring and flow regulation of wastewater are conducted at pumping stations, with a defined key risk indicators for pollution levels in wastewater inflows.

Security risks of information systems and resources. The Issuer's reliance on information systems and technological resources is critical for seamless operations, efficient service delivery, and compliance with regulatory standards. However, this reliance exposes the Issuer to significant security risks, particularly in safeguarding the availability, integrity, and confidentiality of information. With the growing complexity of cyber threats and increased reliance on digital systems, these risks have become more pronounced, potentially disrupting operations and compromising sensitive data. To mitigate these risks, the Issuer has implemented data leakage prevention tools and employs internal monitoring and auditing using technical resources.

Limitation of the scope of the Issuer's business operations by the Riga City Council. The Issuer has entered into an agreement with the Riga City Council, dated 24 July 2019, on provision of water supply and sewerage services within the administrative territory of Riga City. By this agreement, the Riga City Council has assigned the Issuer with the task to provide various public water management services by using the water supply and sewerage network of Riga City owned by the Issuer. The agreement with the Riga City Council has been concluded for a period of 10 years with an option to extend the term of the agreement if a relevant decision of the Riga City Council has been adopted. As a result of the necessity to enter into a new agreement with the Riga City Council and further prolongation of the Issuer's remit, as of 24 July 2029 the scope of the Issuer's business operations may be altered.

Legislative risks. Legislative risks stem from amendments to laws, regulations, or policies that may impose new compliance obligations, alter operational frameworks, or increase costs, thereby challenging the alignment of the Issuer's strategic objectives with external requirements. The Issuer operates within a regulatory landscape subject to frequent changes that can significantly impact its ability to achieve strategic goals. To mitigate legislative risks, the Issuer employs proactive regulatory monitoring and regularly engages with policymakers and industry stakeholders.

Litigation and dispute risk. Litigation and dispute risk arises from the possibility of legal challenges or conflicts involving the Issuer. These risks stem from disputes with customers, suppliers, regulators, or other third parties, potentially leading to financial losses, operational disruptions, and reputational damage. The Issuer's operations are governed by a complex legal and regulatory framework, and its extensive relationships with external stakeholders further increase exposure to this risk. The Issuer has implemented a multi-faceted approach to mitigate litigation and dispute risks, ensuring effective management and resolution of potential conflicts.

Risks associated with the credit ratings of the Issuer. The Issuer has A3 credit rating from Moody's Ratings that reflects its strong institutional and operational linkages as well as an integral role within Riga City as reflected in a clear public policy mandate providing water supply and sewer services. However, any credit rating agency may lower its ratings or withdraw the rating if, in the sole judgement of the credit rating agency, the credit quality of the Issuer has declined or is in question. In addition, at any time a credit rating agency may revise its relevant rating methodology with the result that, among other things, any rating assigned to the Issuer may be lowered. If any of the ratings assigned to the Issuer is lowered or withdrawn, the market value of the EuGBs may be reduced.
